

ACON is Australia's leading community-based HIV and LGBTI health organisation

We're here to work with legislators, policymakers and service providers to develop healthy public policy that supports the needs of LGBTI* people and people with HIV living in NSW.

We're looking for a committed and experienced policy officer to further develop and extend our services to meet the health needs of our communities.

Policy and Development Officer

ACON offers a professional, inclusive and rewarding workplace.

We have a great opportunity for an experienced policy professional to use their research skills and knowledge of the NSW health system to influence health policy and develop formal grant proposals to better address the needs of our communities.

ACON is committed to providing our people with opportunities for professional development and growth, a safe and flexible work environment, and the scope to deliver innovative, cutting-edge health programs and services.

If this sounds like the position and the place that you've been looking for, find out how to apply at www.acon.org.au.

Applications close Monday, 19 March 2018.

ACON is an EEO employer and encourages people with HIV, in particular, to apply.
