About Griffith University

At Griffith University we believe in, strive for and celebrate the remarkable.

We are known for our high impact research, outstanding student experience, our commitment to social justice and our welcoming environment. We're proud of our remarkable achievements, of our people and their passion for making a positive difference. Together we contribute to the development of knowledge and learning in an attractive environment which values excellence, equity, diversity, and innovation.

The Arts, Education and Law (AEL) group encompasses creative and performing arts, education, law, criminology, social science and humanities. It represents a comprehensive academic group with a presence across all five Griffith campuses.

The Group is committed to developing teaching programs to prepare students for a changing world and producing outstanding scholarship and research which supports global social change and development.

The Group includes a number of Schools that are highly ranked internationally, and has a strong commitment to producing impactful research that contributes to the wider needs of society.

The opportunity

The position offers an exciting opportunity to be part of the School's new Bachelor of Communication and Journalism and to contribute to its design and implementation. Importantly, the focus of both the Communication and Journalism staff and the new degree program is a commitment to the potential of communication and journalism to impact and deliver positive social and environmental change.

This is a continuing, full time position based at the Nathan or Gold Coast campus.
