Work type: Continuing

Location: Parkville

Division/Faculty: Melbourne Law School

Role & Superannuation rate: Academic - Full time - 17% super

Melbourne Law School at the University of Melbourne seeks to appoint one or more academics to join our scholarly community. Melbourne Law School is Australia's leading law school and is consistently ranked in the top ten law schools globally.

We welcome applications from academics working in one or more of the following fields: intellectual property law; the intersection of law and technology (especially cybersecurity); Indigenous peoples and law; and criminal law. We also seek to appoint one or more teaching specialists with a focus on curriculum and assessment design and digital technology. We especially welcome applications from early career researchers and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians. Appointments may be made from Level A (Assistant Lecturer) to Level E (Professor).

Full details of appointment possibilities may be found in the Position Description in the advertisement located at: <http://go.unimelb.edu.au/3h2r>

Applications (consisting of cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement addressing the selection criteria) must be submitted online. Please also indicate clearly the level at which you are applying.

Enquiries may be directed to Professor Matthew Harding, Deputy Dean, at law-hr@unimelb.edu.au, tel. 03 8344 1117.

Melbourne Law School is an equal opportunity employer and welcomes applications from all scholars able to enrich our scholarly community. Indigenous Australians seeking support to apply are encouraged to contact the University by emailing their contact details and position number to law-hr@unimelb.edu.au
