- The Victorian Community and Social Services Graduate Program is open now
- 12-month graduate learning and development opportunity
- Be supported as you grow in your career

The Community and Social Services Graduate Program is your path to an exciting career in community services.

This program could be right for you if you:

- have recently graduated (within the last two years) or are about to graduate from courses in a field of study related to community and social services
- are new to the community and social services professional workforce, and
- are looking to invest in your career through a learning and development program designed to help you thrive in a challenging community and social services role.

About the program

Successful applicants will be connected with a role in community and social services that is appropriate for recent graduates and fully paid in accordance with industry awards and conditions.

Graduates in the program will participate in a professional development program offering training, enhanced supervision and other supports to help you thrive in your new role and maximise your potential.

The program includes:

- cross-sector induction to build your understanding of the service system in practice
- a tailored professional learning program
- enhanced professional supervision, and
- peer networking with other graduates across community services.

About the community and social services sector

Community and social services is one of Victoria's fastest-growing sectors. A career in the sector can take you to a wide variety of rewarding roles, all of which offer the opportunity to:

- make a positive difference in the lives of Victorians
- put your knowledge and training into practice in ways that matter, and
- be a part of Victoria's exciting social reforms in family violence, disability, children and families, homelessness, social housing and more
