Acreage Release Area EPNT26-1 may be viewed at <http://strike.nt.gov.au/wss.html>.

The reason why the blocks are intended to be released for exploration

The area proposed for release includes areas within the defined boundaries of the Beetaloo Sub-basin, within the greater McArthur Basin. This is a highly prospective onshore basin with proven unconventional petroleum systems. The area is supported by a substantial subsurface dataset, including 37 wells and more than 9,000 km of seismic data within the sub-basin, as well as regional seismic and well data. This release provides an opportunity to further appraise and develop a strategically important gas resource, supporting domestic energy security.

The Northern Territory Geological Survey assesses the acreage release area as highly prospective for petroleum, with the Beetaloo Sub-basin representing one of Australia's most significant onshore gas provinces. Drilling, testing, and geochemical studies have confirmed a series of working unconventional petroleum systems, characterised by thick, organic-rich shale source rocks with demonstrated hydrocarbon generation, and retention, and supported by recent flow tests indicating significant gas rates and stable production.

Some reservoir-seal pairs within the Beetaloo Sub-basin have also been identified as potential Carbon Capture and Storage targets.

Submissions

The public can comment on the proposed acreage release by lodging a submission under section 16(2)(db) of the Petroleum Act 1984, prior to 4pm ACST on Wednesday, 16 December 2026. The Minister for Mining and Energy will consider the submissions and make a determination to release the specified blocks for exploration or otherwise. Submissions are limited to the following:

- if there are other existing or proposed industries for a specified block – whether exploration of the specified block is possible at the same time
- whether the land of a specified block is suitable for exploration.

Note: The submission may submit that the land is not suitable for exploration because the land is subject to intensive agriculture, of high ecological value, of high scenic value, culturally significant or of strategic importance to nearby residential areas.

Submissions are to be emailed to DME.PetroleumRelease@nt.gov.au.

Applications

Applications should be prepared in accordance with section 16(3) of the Petroleum Act 1984 and submitted to the Department of Mining and Energy prior to 4pm ACST on Wednesday, 16 December 2026.

The Native Title Act 1993, Right to Negotiate Procedure is used for all petroleum negotiations on pastoral leasehold land. Further details of the application requirements are set out in the Northern Territory Petroleum Exploration Permit Application Guidelines.

The guidelines and the acreage release data package are available at <https://dme.nt.gov.au/energy/petroleum-acreage-releases>.

NSW PLANNING PANELS

Chair and expert members 2027 - 2030

The NSW Department of Planning, Housing and Infrastructure (DPHI) is building the next pool of expert members and chairs for the state's Local and Regional Planning Panels, for a term from 2027 to 2030. These independent statutory panels determine complex development applications and advise on planning proposals across New South Wales. Their decisions shape housing, growth and the character of the places communities live and work in, at a time when the state's planning system is undergoing its most significant reform in decades.

The Department is recruiting a pool of approximately 220 expert members and 160 chairs for Local Planning Panels, and 4 chairs, 8 state members and 25 alternate members for the state's 4 Regional Planning Panels. Candidates are encouraged to apply for both. This work is designed to sit alongside your existing commitments, not replace them.

Appointed and paid for their independent expertise, panel members will:

- Review complex development applications and supporting material, and reach sound determinations that stand up to scrutiny.
- Attend panel meetings and site inspections (as required), question applicants and objectors, and contribute to clear written decisions and advice.
- Apply specialist knowledge in planning, architecture, heritage, the environment, urban design, economics, transport, law, engineering or public administration.
- As a chair, facilitate discussion, guide the panel through difficult matters, and work constructively with a diverse range of parties.

As an experienced professional with sound judgement and independence, you will bring senior-level expertise to decisions that matter to communities across NSW. You demonstrate a strong understanding of the planning and legislative framework, and of the accountability and governance principles that underpin good decision-making. As a considered communicator, you can weigh technical and community evidence, manage conflicts of interest, and form views you are willing to defend. Chair candidates also bring expertise in law or public administration, along with the leadership to guide constructive, timely panel discussion. The Department warmly encourages applications from regional NSW, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander candidates, and candidates of all genders and cultural backgrounds.

Please note you are not eligible for appointment if you are a property developer or real estate agent as defined in the relevant legislation, currently employed by the Department or a council, or currently bankrupt or insolvent. Sitting councillors are not eligible for Local Planning Panel roles.

For a confidential discussion, please contact Adam Dent of Orchard Talent Group by email planningpanels@orchardtalent.com.au. To apply, complete the online form at orchardtalent.com.au/planningpanels.

Applications close 17 August 2026.
