Where you'll will be working

The Cancer Institute NSW is the NSW Government's cancer control agency, established to lessen the impact of cancer across the state. Working at the Cancer Institute NSW means joining a team of committed staff who are proud to be a part of the Institute's purpose of overseeing and accelerating the effectiveness of cancer control in NSW.

Expressions of Interest are invited for Aboriginal candidates to join a dynamic team that works across the Cancer Institute NSW to provide specialist advice and support in the development and implementation of programs, projects and key activities that seek to improve cancer outcomes for Aboriginal people.

What you'll be doing

In this role you will be required to have specialist knowledge/experience of working within the Aboriginal sector with senior level project management experience and skills managing all stages of projects including documentation to support planning and implementation through to monitoring, evaluation and reporting

You will work across the divisions to provide specialist advice and support on the development of programs projects and activities as they relate to Aboriginal communities. Whilst the role is based in our Screening & Prevention Division, you have highly developed stakeholder and engagement skills as the role will be responsible for co-ordination of the Institute's Aboriginal governance advisory meetings and maintaining key Aboriginal stakeholder and community engagement relationships and reporting.

In this role you are an important contributor to support Institute initiatives and reporting requirements including the NSW Aboriginal Health Plan, Reconciliation Action Plan and Committee outcomes.
