The purpose of the SESLHD Health Management Graduate Program is to develop future skilled and committed health leaders and managers. The SESLHD Health Management Graduate Program is a broad and comprehensive two-year program with two main components:

1. Workplace Component:

Participants in the SESLHD Health Management Graduate Program work full-time for SESLHD, undertaking placements of 3-6 months duration through such areas as Hospital Operations, People and Culture, Finance, the Chief Executive Unit and an elective placement in their area of choice.

SESLHD participants are developed and supported through the program via a range of ongoing professional development activities, including workshop and training courses, attendance at conference and events, mentoring opportunities and a dedicated program coordinator.

2. Academic Component:

To complement the workplace learning and accelerate their knowledge over the course of the program, Health Management Trainees undertake a master's degree in health leadership and management (or equivalent) on a part-time basis and in online mode.

Health Management Trainees are required to successfully undertake and complete all components of the program, as outlined above during the two-year program.
