

Child & Family Health Nurse – New Direction Aboriginal Mothers and Babies Program

Department: Western Sydney Local Health District

Location: Mount Druitt Hospital

Classification: Registered Nurse

Employment Status: Temporary Part-Time and Temporary Full-Time

Enquiries: Graeme Pringle on Graeme.Pringle@health.nsw.gov.au

Purpose of position:

This position is part of the New Directions Mothers and Babies Program, which is funded by the Commonwealth Government. New Directions aims to contribute to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander early childhood health and development to ensure that children are healthy and ready for school. The program provides high quality, culturally sensitive child and family health services, based on primary health care principles, provided in partnership with Aboriginal people and communities.

The Child & Family Health Nurse (CFHN) practices at an extended level of nursing, working within a primary healthcare model with families who have infants and / or young children. Working in partnership is the foundation of CFHN practice. The CFHN uses a strength-based and wellness focus to promote the health and wellbeing of children and families, identifies variations in health and development, and intervenes when appropriate.

WSLHD encourages applications from candidates with strong Aboriginal cultural knowledge and/or connections to Aboriginal community.
