About us

The Curtin Law School offers a range of programs including a Bachelor of Laws (LLB) taught by highly qualified and experienced legal academics, a professionally relevant Business Law major taught at both undergraduate and postgraduate level. Academic staff within the CLS are committed to high levels of industry relevant research as well as dedicated, professional and stimulating teaching methods. Curtin Law School is seeking to appoint an Indigenous legal academic who has strong teaching, research and/or engagement skills and experience. The successful candidate will have an independent research agenda with the ability to teach into one or more of the Priestley 11 (LLB) subjects, as well as LLB electives such as Indigenous Legal Issues.

Curtin University considers that being Aboriginal or a Torres Strait Islander is a genuine occupational requirement for this position under section 50D of the Equal Opportunity Act 1984 (WA).

Your new role

- Keen leadership and mentoring skills will flow from high levels of engagement with (Indigenous) communities and the legal profession.
- The successful candidate will have an established interest in health justice and/or social reinvestment outcomes of Indigenous peoples and will work to develop and maintain a deep, collaborative relationship between Curtin Law School and other parts of Curtin University such as the Curtin Medical School and the Centre for Human Rights Education.
- Maintain and foster working relationships with external Indigenous entities such as native title groups, civil society organisations and social enterprises.
- An established record of research outputs in high quality referred journals (highly desirable)
- Demonstrable leadership and mentorship activities
- A national reputation with a growing international reputation evidenced by teaching, research and/or engagement initiatives along with membership of esteemed national and international bodies.

In advancing the strategic direction of Curtin Law School, the successful candidate will be committed to:

- Integrating legal education with legal practice
- Ensuring contributions embed international perspectives and;
- Operationalising the Rule of Law.

You will bring to the role

- Applicants will have completed a PhD in law and a current legal practicing certificate is highly desirable.
- Developed high level teaching skills with a reflective approach to teaching.
- A significant contribution to scholarship in teaching and experience in curriculum development and unit/course coordination.

- An established record of research outputs/creative works in high quality refereed academic journals/outlets consistent with the discipline.
- Evidence of an established national reputation and growing international profile and a record of obtaining research income, including nationally competitive research grants and/or fellowships.
- Leadership skills with the ability to lead major curriculum and/or research initiatives providing mentoring to less experienced staff and supervise HDR students.
- Engaging interpersonal skills with the ability to foster the development of a collegial and supportive working environment and the ability to interact with students and staff with cross cultural sensitivity.

What we offer you

- Agile and flexible working environment with great work life balance
- Industry interaction across Australia
- Wellness is a part of our culture, we encourage positive lifestyle choices through activities and initiatives
- A vibrant campus with gym, child care, medical and counselling services
- Easily accessible location with great parking, bus station and end of trip facilities
