

First Nations Justice Campaigner

GetUp is looking for a First Nations Justice Campaigner to join our First Nations Justice Campaigns team.

SCHADS Classification Level 4-5, salary range $71,180.72 - $84,483.88 per annum (pro-rata) + superannuation, determined by relevant experience and qualifications.

This is a permanent and ideally full time contract based in Sydney, Brisbane or Melbourne.

This is an identified position only open to people identifying as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander. GetUp considers that being Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander is a genuine occupational requirement for this position under s14 of the AntiDiscrimination Act 1977 (NSW). Additionally the filling of this position/these positions is intended to constitute a special/equal opportunity measure under section 8(1) of the Racial Discrimination Act 1975 (Cth).

Who is GetUp

The GetUp movement is powered by the values and hopes of one million members, movement partners and a central team of expert strategists. We work together to take action for extraordinary impact.

We focus our campaigns on the areas our members care about most in the fields of First Nations Justice, Environmental Justice, Human Rights, Economic Fairness, and Democratic Integrity. From making sure hundreds of thousands of people are able to vote in elections, to successfully stopping major projects threatening the Great Barrier Reef, or fighting against a regime of deterrence for people seeking asylum – we have a decade-long history of mobilising our movement for change.

Who is the First Nations Justice Campaigns Team

GetUp's First Nations work is led by a team of campaigners from the Wadjabul Wia-bul, Gooreng Gooreng, and Garawa nations. The team prides itself on deep strategic thinking and strong engagement with impacted communities, while inspiring the diversity of people across our movement to take action for change.

Our days are filled with analysing the political state of play, developing long-term and rapid-fire campaign strategy, engagement with First Nations organisations and communities, speaking to politicians and the media, running impactful tactics - everything from loud protests to undercover investigations, writing hard-hitting copy, using new media for creative storytelling, and coming up with innovative ways to give people the best chance for impact.

The First Nations Justice Campaigner will work within the team to design and deliver First Nations Justice campaigns which:

- achieve demonstrable social change outcomes for First Nations communities;
- put impacted communities and allies at the heart of our theory of power and change;
- see our movement and supporter base grow and diversify, and their enthusiasm for action on First Nations issues increase;
- enact campaigning best practice, including innovatively combining digital and offline campaign techniques;
- are informed by a strong justice lens.

You will be someone who has/is:

- a deeply held understanding of the issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and demonstrated commitment to justice for First Nations peoples;
- a demonstrated track record of working collaboratively and communicating effectively with and within First Nations communities;
- strong digital skills and a willingness to learn new technologies, and who thrives in a fast-paced newsroom environment;
- demonstrated communication skills, who is adept at thinking through complex policies and ideas and communicating them simply and clearly;
- Capable of working autonomously on a range of varied tasks and projects, and takes the initiative doing whatever it takes to get the job done;
- Is a team player who brings creative, innovative ideas to the table; and
- Has at least two years experience in the workforce.

Bonus points for:

- Experience in GetUp-style online campaigning; and
- Experience working in the media cycle.

If even a couple of these criteria speak to you, you could be the perfect person for the job. Formal education, qualifications and extensive experience matter less to us than excellence, initiative and drive.

Applications close 9am Monday 14 December 2020.
