About Griffith University

At Griffith University we believe in, strive for and celebrate the remarkable.

We are known for our high impact research, outstanding student experience, our commitment to social justice and our welcoming environment. We rank in the top 2% of universities worldwide and we're proud of our remarkable achievements, of our people and their passion for making a positive difference. Together we contribute to the development of knowledge and learning in an attractive environment which values excellence, equity, diversity, and innovation.

The School of Nursing and Midwifery is one of the largest of schools within the Heath Group and Griffith University. Our School has a strong international focus and reputation and we are committed to the global development of nursing and midwifery practice, theory and research in positive and visionary ways. Through developing research, consultancy and continuing education opportunities, we seek to serve the nursing and midwifery professions, the health care system and the broader community.

The opportunity

This position will contribute to the teaching of undergraduate and postgraduate courses in the School including initiating and developing course material where appropriate. You will also undertake high impact research in your areas of expertise while also supervising research students. Where required, this position will also act as Course Coordinator.

About you

The successful applicant will be eligible to apply for unrestricted registration and license to practice as a registered nurse with the Singapore Nursing Board, with a track record and commitment to teaching excellence. You will have demonstrated clinical nursing expertise and a thorough working knowledge of contemporary issues and challenges in both nursing practice and nursing education. Experience in curriculum design and development and course coordination would be desirable.
