

CURATOR – DESIGNATED FIRST NATIONS

ACMI is the museum of screen culture. Navigate the universe of film, TV, videogames and art with us. ACMI celebrates the wonder and power of the world's most democratic artform – fostering the next generation of makers, players and watchers. ACMI's vibrant calendar of exhibitions, screenings, commissions, festivals, and industry and education programs explore the stories, technologies and artists that create our shared screen culture. Explore our universe on a variety of online platforms before we reopen our doors in 2021.

We have a rare opportunity available to join our Curatorial team to identify and craft stories for the museums and identify objects and interactives that will tell these stories in an innovative way. A major focus of the position is working with key internal and external stakeholders (including ACMI's Indigenous Advisory Committee) to identify, develop and deliver indigenous content and programs; but you will also work across the exhibition and broader programs holistically.

You will be experienced in producing exhibitions with a passion for the moving image with the ability to navigate First Peoples artistic and cultural practice and communities locally and nationally. Your excellent research, writing and organisational skills coupled with ability to forge new relationships will enable you to thrive in this role.

This role is a Grade 4, available on a full-time basis with a commencing salary of $85,279 plus super.

To apply, follow the online application process from the ACMI Careers page. Applications should provide a 500-word response and a brief resume, demonstrating their ability to meet the requirements of the role outlined within the position description and the Confirmation of Aboriginality or Torres Strait Islander Descendants Form.

This is a special measures role and only Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander peoples are eligible to apply, as per the Equal Opportunity Act 2010.

Applications close: Thursday 3rd December 2020 at 11.59pm.

Please note interviews will be held: Friday 11th December 2020 via Zoom.

For further information on this role, please refer to the position description listed on the careers section of our website www.acmi.net.au.
