

Aboriginal Conferencing Convenor

Youth Justice NSW

- Multiple locations across NSW
- Support the Aboriginal community
- Casual rate of $46.75/hr

This is a great opportunity for individuals who are interested in a community-based role that supports young Aboriginal people who offend by running community group discussions.

A division of The Department of Communities and Justice, Youth Justice supervises and provides custodial and community-based services for youths, encouraging them to make positive changes to their behaviour and build their skills to reduce their risk of reoffending.

Your new role

- Responsible for bringing people together to address an issue
- Listen and connect with people attending the meetings
- Help develop a plan for positive change
- Maintain a working relationship with local police, support services and other agencies
- Complete administrative tasks associated with the meeting
- Four day training and assessment process
- Ongoing support and training for professional development

About you

- Be of Aboriginal heritage
- Ability to connect with Aboriginal young people and their families
- Listen to the issues affecting victims of crime and the community
- Build relationships with the local community networks
- Working with children check clearance

Applying for the role:

To apply for this role please submit an application online via www.iworkfor.nsw.gov.au quoting job reference number 0000700W.

Closing date: Sunday, 5 April 2020